

Name	Adapting to Coastal Climate Change: A Guidebook for Development Planners
Description	Adapting to Coastal Climate Change: A Guidebook for Development Planners, provides a detailed treatment of climate concerns and adaptation options in coastal areas. The document is both a tool and a link to other resources for assessing vulnerability, developing and implementing adaptation, and integrating options into programs, plans, and projects.
Type	- PRODUCTS: Training and Capacity Building
Sector	- Infrastructure - Natural Ecosystems - Economic Resources - Recreation and Tourism
Focus Area	- Coasts and Climate Resilience (including sea-level rise)
Region	- National
Lead Agencies	Climate Frontlines, USAID
Contacts	Richard Volk (Water team) or John Furlow (Climate Program), climatechange@USAID.gov or Pam Rubinoff, URI Coastal Resources Center, climatechange@crc.uri.edu